Bowl Game . . . Crisis in the Poultry Industry

Like most football fans your editor figured the Cotton Bowl had the prize TV game of New Year's Day.

It's hard for a Razorback follower to cheer for Texas under any circumstances, and I remained resolutely neutral until Alabama wound up the first half with the game well in hand.

Coach Bryant had my sympathy because he had never yet beaten a Royal-coached Texas team. Besides, Texas had placed many a Razorback scalp in her trophy case on her road to football glory.

But about halftime the TV announcers recalled the Longhorns' habit of making a stem-winder finish. They forecast some football magic in the fourth quarter. Maybe I was being brain-washed, but then and there I started to lose my neutrality. After all, Texas was representing our Southwest Conference . . .

The TV announcers had a message for us—but they were only half right. It wasn't the fourth quarter that the Longhorns came alive—it was the third. But the game was a cliff-hanger through the fourth also, for despite the go-ahead in the third Texas never did put the win on ice, squeezing out a 17-13 victory.

Louis Graves' Nashville News in the Dec. 29 edition carried a fine editorial analysis of the poultry industry, and I pass it on to you:

THE SQUEEZE ON CHICK

Efficiency in production and marketing has held the price of chickens below that of nearly 40 or 50 years ago but now the sharp increase in feed that goes into the chicken has made 13 or 15 or 17 cent per pound for live birds a thing of that same past. The alternative to higher prices is a sick industry with empty chicken houses and idled plants and jobless people.

Quite obviously, the seriousness comes home to Arkansas, the No. 1 broiler growing state, and to Howard County in Southwest Arkansas where the poultry business is big business indeed and is the key to our economic health today.

An urgent plea is being made to lift the price ceiling or remove poultry from the list of price control items, in order that growers and companies can boost their own prices and survive the inflationary times.

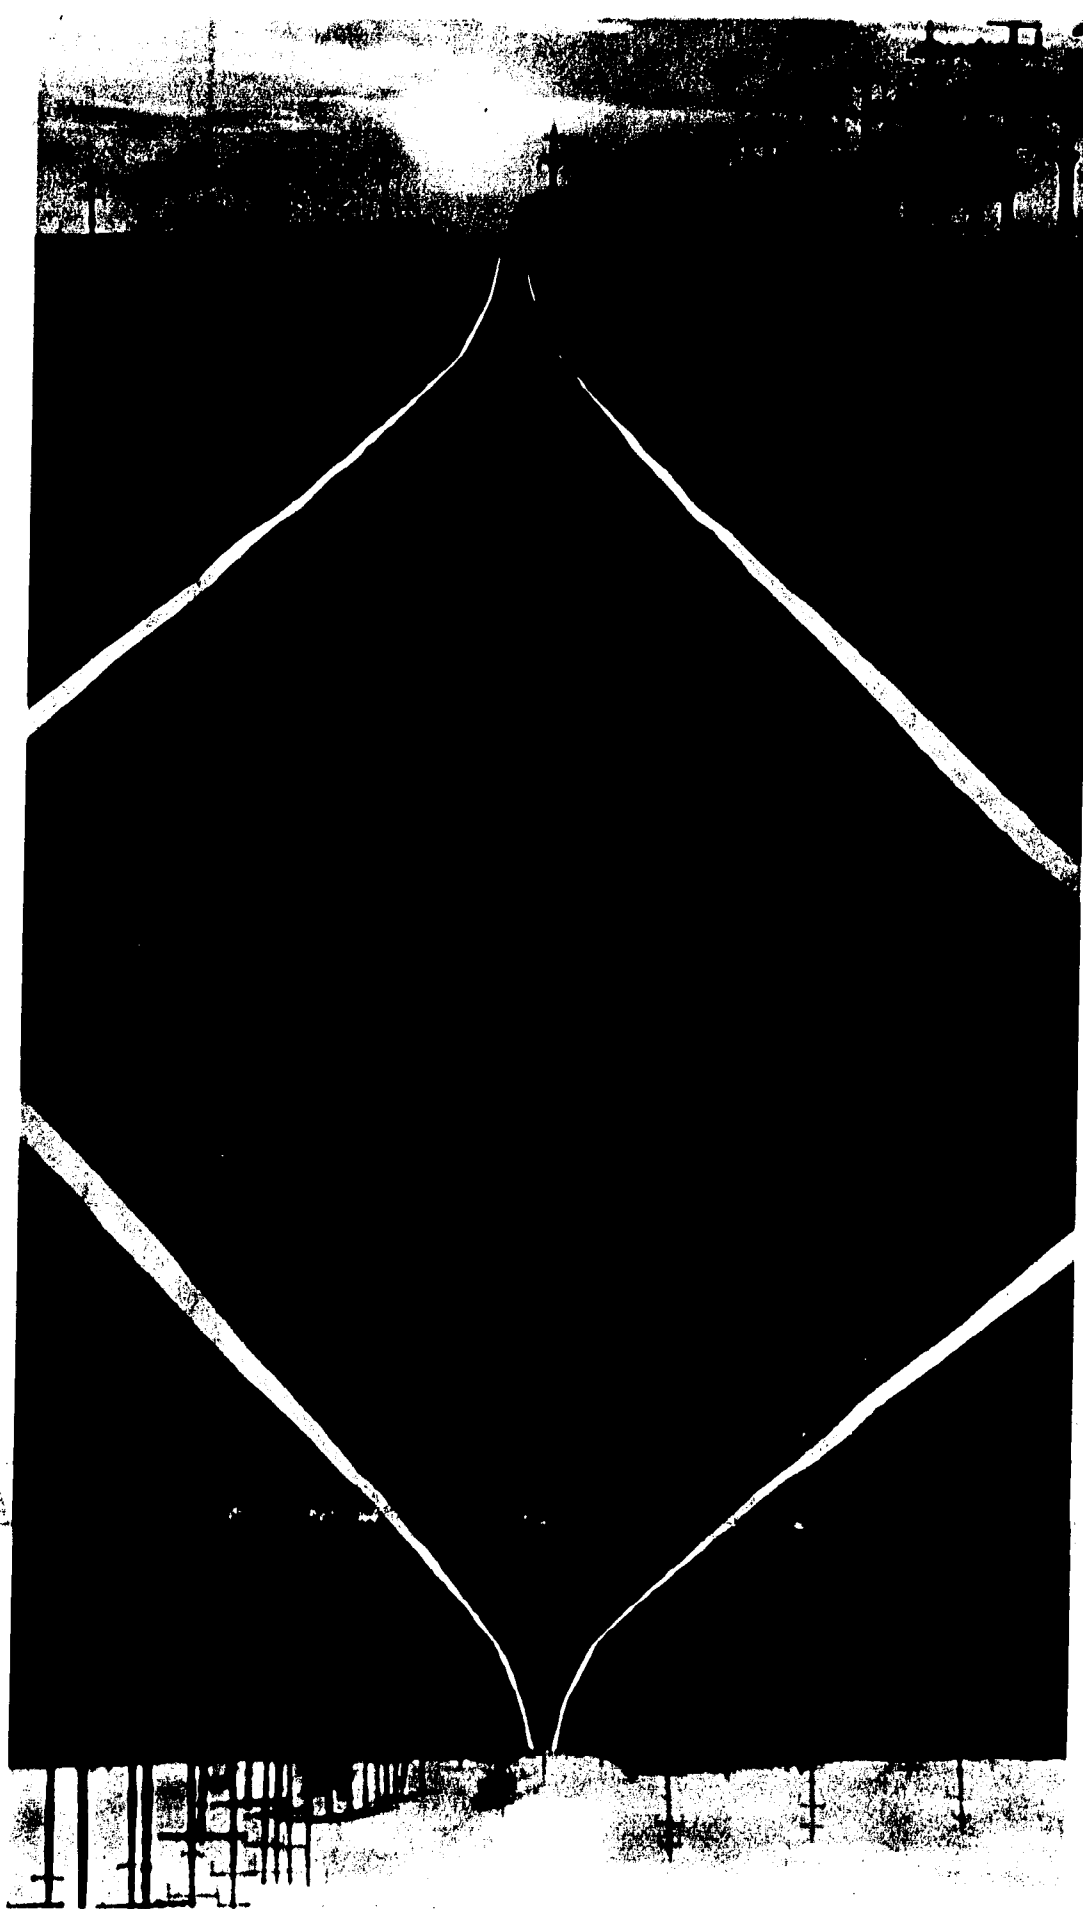

Farmers Union officials here Wednesday heard the industry story that all broiler operations were hurt, grower and companies alike, simply because 13 cents per pound birds cannot be produced when the price for a prime ingredient, soybeans, jumps from $92 to $210 a ton within six months. There is no ceiling on grain, indeed grain prices may continue to rise.

Inasmuch as the poultry industry is vital to Arkansas, we anticipate all members of the Washington delegation will use their influence with the administration to pick poultry out of the line-up of controlled prices.

Couple shot

BELFAST (AP) — Ireland's gunmen began 1973 with the murder of a young Roman Catholic couple in the Irish Republic, an ambush in Northern Ireland in which one Catholic was killed and two were wounded and a rocket attack on a Belfast police station.

A farmer in the republic two miles from the frontier with Northern Ireland reported he heard 15 shots and a girl's scream about 2 a.m. Monday. Police found the body of dark-haired Brigid Porter, 24, lying across the corpse of her fiancé, Oliver Boyce, 25, in a field.

China apparently to continue trade plan

TOKYO (AP) — Despite the Vietnam war, Communist China apparently plans to continue in 1973 its policy of contacts with the United States and other non-Communist powers.

This is the between-the-lines meaning of a long, long New Year's message carried by the three most important publications in China: the Peking People's Daily, the Liberation Army Daily and the theoretical organ, Red Flag.

The way the papers put it, Communist Chairman Mao Tse-tung's "revolutionary line in foreign affairs" — the liberal approach begun with the Ping-Pong diplomacy of 1971 — will be continued in this new year.

The decision appears to have been reached while U.S. bombers still were striking massively at the vitals of North Vietnam.

Though it condemned the bombing and promised, if it persisted, to give "usual" all-out support and aid to the Vietnamese Communists, the New Year message gave no hint that it would affect the improvement Chinese-American relations dating from President Nixon's visit to Peking last February.

The message made the usual attack on the "power politics" of the United States and the Soviet Union, but the harsh words were reserved for the Russians.

President Nixon surprise visitor

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, a surprise visitor to the White House on New Year's Day, is said to have found himself locked out of his own Oval Office Monday morning.

Nixon, once expected to spend the entire holiday weekend at Camp David, Md., apparently upset security duty rosters—and other things—by returning from his mountaintop lodge Sunday night.

Although there is evidence that a few aides anticipated the quick return from Camp David, one White House official reported that when Nixon appeared at his Oval Office at 7:30 a.m. on New Year's Day he discovered, after futile wrestling with the doorknob, that routine security precautions were keeping him out of his own inner sanctum.

By all accounts, it did not take Nixon long to find a White House policeman—a uniformed member of the Executive Protection Service—who came up with a passkey.

The chief executive, who seems more apt to alter apparent plans the longer he remains in office—a point noted with some of his predecessors—gave no explanation for his helicopter return to the White House on one of the nation's traditional live-it-up holiday evenings.

Bombing follows 36-hour halt

US resumes attacks on south panhandle

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes resumed attacks on North Vietnam's southern panhandle below the 20th parallel today after a 36-hour halt for New Year's, the U.S. Command announced.

The bombing halt above the 20th parallel, which includes Hanoi and Haiphong, remained in effect. It was ordered by President Nixon on Saturday in preparation for the resumption of secret peace negotiations in Paris next Monday.

A communique said air operations over North Vietnam resumed at 1 p.m. It gave no details, but U.S. officials said the bombers were attacking supply routes below the 20th parallel to slow the annual dry-season push of war materiel across the demilitarized zone and through Laos into South Vietnam.

The U.S. Command also reported that bombing operations were resumed in South Vietnam at dusk Monday after a 24-hour holiday halt.

The pattern was the same during the Christmas cease-fire, and again there was no explanation why the halt in North Vietnam lasted 12 hours longer.

The Command said that, from dusk Monday until dawn today, U.S. planes made 44 strikes in South Vietnam, all but two of them in the northern quarter of the country below the DMZ.

During the bombing cessation in South and North Vietnam, U.S. air attacks shifted to the Ho Chi Minh Trail in eastern Laos, Hanoi's main supply route southward, and to supply lines and base camps in Cambodia, the Command said.

U.S. planes also flew missions in support of Laotian forces battling North Vietnamese troops in the Plain of Jars, in northeast Laos, the communique said.

Radio Hanoi claimed that a U.S. RA5C reconnaissance plane was shot down Sunday in Quang Binh, North Vietnam's southernmost province. It did not mention the fate of the crew. The U.S. Command said it had no plane losses to report.

The South Vietnamese command reported generally light battlefield activity but one major fight about 40 miles northeast of Saigon this morning. A militia unit ran into about 100 enemy troops, and fighting was reported continuing at mid-afternoon.

First reports said at least two militiamen were killed, but there was no report yet of enemy losses.

Nhan Dan, North Vietnam's official newspaper, said in a New Year's editorial that the Communist side recorded two basic victories during the past year, "defeating the U.S. 'Vietnamization of the war' policy and foiling the U.S. plan to 're-Americanize the war'" with a massive infusion of U.S. air and naval power.

POWs issue end-the-war statement

TOKYO (AP) — North Vietnam said today that 30 American prisoners of war, including 20 crewmen from B52 bombers downed recently, have issued a joint statement urging the U.S. Congress to try to help end the Vietnam war.

The official Vietnam News Agency broadcast the text of the statement and the names of the 30 POWs. Hanoi had reported the capture of all them previously.

First-hand views of bombing given

NEW YORK (AP) — Retired Brig. Gen. Teleford Taylor, who was in Hanoi with three other Americans recently during intensive U.S. bombing attacks, says: "You can drive for miles through Hanoi and not see any damage and then suddenly come upon a virtual desert."

"The bombing is quite heavier than anything I was under in London" during World War II, Taylor said. He added that the total destruction was not so great because incendiary bombs were not used on Hanoi.

"What you see in Hanoi is nowhere near what you saw in London or Germany right after the war," said Taylor, who was chief U.S. prosecutor at the Nuremberg war-crimes trials.

He said the recent Hanoi raids caused "extensive but concentrated" destruction of many nonmilitary facilities.

"We saw a hospital, housing developments, residential areas as well as airports shattered and virtually erased," Taylor told a news conference Monday after a two-week stay in the North Vietnamese capital.

Taylor, now a professor of law at Columbia University, returned Sunday night with fellow singer Joan Baez; the Rev. Michael Allen, associate dean of the Yale University Divinity School; and Barry Romo, national coordinator of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War.

The group carried Christmas mail to American prisoners of war and returned with 600 letters from the POWs in North Vietnam plus 30 from men said to be held by the Viet Cong in South Vietnam. Their trip was sponsored by the Committee of Liaison with Families of Servicemen Detained in North Vietnam.

The group visited 13 prisoners of war in a camp in Hanoi after one of the raids and found the men repairing a roof that had been damaged by shrapnel. Miss Baez said prisoners told her that fellow inmates had been injured in the raids.

"One of the detained pilots had been there for about four months, and he kept saying, 'What's happening? I thought the war was going to end on Oct. 30,'" said Mr. Romo.

Allen said he was convinced that the bombing was aimed at civilian as well as military targets. "There's no question that the bombing is extremely accurate," he said.

North Vietnam had reported more than 2,000 civilians killed in the raids over the Hanoi and Haiphong areas when President Nixon halted the attacks Sunday after 12 days. Pentagon and administration officials denied the North Vietnamese charge that nonmilitary facilities were targeted.

Clemente is declared dead

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Puerto Rico's governor-elect canceled festivities for his inauguration today as the island joined the U.S. sports world in mourning Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder Roberto Clemente.

The 38-year-old Puerto Rican athlete—whose long, lashing bat, speedily baserunning and leaping catches earned him about $150,000 a year—was declared dead in the crash Sunday night of a plane taking off with relief supplies for earthquake victims at Managua, Nicaragua. Four others aboard the plane also died in the crash.

Gov.-elect Rafael Hernandez Colon canceled the inaugural ball and all other social activities of his swearing-in. He takes over today from Gov. Louis A. Ferre, who ordered three days of official mourning.

"He was one of the greatest persons I knew," said John Galbreath, the Pirates' board chairman. "If you have to die, how better could your death be exemplified than on a mission of mercy?"

Bill Virdon, the Pirates' manager, predicted baseball writers would vote Clemente into the Cooperstown, N.Y., Hall of Fame as soon as the five-year waiting period is up.

"His marvelous playing skills rank him among the truly elite," said Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. "And what a wonderfully good man he was . . . He had about him the touch of royalty."

Clemente was named on Christmas Eve to head Puerto Rico's earthquake-relief effort. He had visited Nicaragua a few weeks before as manager of an amateur baseball team participating in a tournament at Managua.

Sources at the San Juan airport said the four-engine DC7 plunged into the ocean as it was making a sharp left bank after takeoff. The plane was owned by a San Juan air-cargo operator.

Six-foot waves hampered the search in waters a mile and a half north of the airport. The Coast Guard said a suitcase and some wreckage was found and the search was to continue today. Clemente played his 18th season for the Pirates in 1972. They had paid the Dodgers $4,000 to draft the then obscure young player from Montreal in 1954.

His lifetime batting average was .318, and he won four National League batting titles while hitting better than .300 for 13 seasons.

He was named the National League's Most Valuable Player in 1966 and 12 times he was selected for the All-Star Game.

Last season, Clemente's average was .312 for 102 games, and he made the 3,000th hit of his career.

Bulletin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats renominated Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma as House speaker today, easily turning back a challenge by Rep. John Conyers Jr., of Michigan.

Pompidou claims 'real, precise difficulties' remain in Paris' Vietnam peace negotiations

PARIS (AP) — President Georges Pompidou said today that "real, precise difficulties, hard to overcome, remain in the peace negotiation that are to resume here next Monday between the United States and North Vietnam."

But the French president added that he hoped this time the talks will succeed.

Speaking to representatives of journalists' associations greeting him for the new year, Pompidou said: "The simple fact that negotiations resume is very important."

Asked about France's role in the resumption of talks, the president said there had been an exchange of letters between President Nixon and himself "in addition to the usual contact with both sides."

He did not divulge the contents of the letters.

Pompidou spoke shortly before American and North Vietnamese technical experts were to resume their meetings today in discussing a draft peace treaty. Their last meeting was held Dec. 23, when the North Vietnamese walked out to protest U.S. bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong.

Pompidou said he did not believe the United States will negotiate "at any price" and added that he did not think the bombing of North Vietnam "incited the North Vietnamese to much gratitude or concessions."

In a move to bolster his position in the new round of talks, President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam is sending a pair of envoys to several world capitals, including Paris and Washington.

One of the two, former Foreign Minister Tran Van Do, said today in Saigon that he and Bui Diem, former South Vietnamese ambassador to the United States, will set off Thursday. Washington will be their first stop, he added.

Do did not specify whom he and Diem would be contacting there.

There are some reports that Thieu is trying to protect his interests with Washington, fearful that Nixon might push for a compromise unacceptable to Saigon in reaching a final peace agreement with North Vietnam.

Thieu reportedly has not changed his position that Hanoi must recognize Vietnam as two separate states — the North and the South. He also is reported determined to insist that North Vietnam agree to withdraw its troops from the South.

New members in the House

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be younger faces in the Senate and more women and black legislators in the House when the 93rd Congress begins its work on Wednesday. Here's a look at some of the new members.

Delaware's Democratic Sen. Joseph Biden will be the Senate's youngest member at 3, the minimum constitutional age.

Two Southern states replaced veteran Democratic senators with Republicans. Virginia broke an 80-year tradition when it elected Republican William L. Scott — a conservative House member — and North Carolina chose a conservative television editorialist, Jesse Helms.

In Kentucky, a retiring liberal Republican was replaced by a moderate Democrat, Walter "Dee" Huddleston, a state legislative leader.

And South Dakota voters transferred Democrat James Abourezk from the House to the Senate.

Other Senate newcomers are Sam Nunn, D-Ga.; Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M.; Dick Clark, D-Iowa; James A. McClure, R-Idaho; William D. Hathaway, D-Maine; Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla.; and Floyd D. Haskell, D-Colo.

The election of several new House members strengthened the ranks of women and black legislators.

Barbara Jordan, a Houston Democrat, became the first black Texan in the House since Reconstruction.

Another black woman, California Democrat Yvonne Brathwaite Burke, was elected, and so was another black Southerner, Georgia Democrat Andrew Young.

Republican Majorie Holt won in a new Maryland district.

And two young women's liberation activists — both Democrats — earned House membership. Elizabeth Holtzman won in a New York district, and Patricia Schroeder became the first woman elected to the House from Colorado.

He said a "myriad of details" on the stresses and operation of the plane's systems, broken into 10ths of a second development, would be provided by the recorder.

PAUL CHOATE

Paul Choate Rotary speaker

Paul Choate of the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission spoke to the Hope Rotary Club at its luncheon meeting Friday, December 29, in the Town and Country. The speaker has been here eight years with the commission, an organization that is a service to people and to mankind, and the first District Headquarters building in the state was erected at Perrytown, where he has his office.

"During the last deer season, there were 607 deer killed in this district, an increase over last year," Mr. Choate said. He added that fishing was his greatest interest and gave a thorough report on conditions at Bois d'Arc and Millwood. To control vegetation at Bois d'Arc certain fish have been stocked there, and after the draw-down at Millwood, exotic fish were introduced there. There is now a large bass population at Millwood.

The club members asked numerous questions at the conclusion of the speaker's prepared remarks. C. R. "Dick" Moore presided over the meeting in the absence of the president, and he welcomed two guests, Sydney McMath of Boston, Mass., and Bill Etter, V of

People in the News

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Pat Nixon has this bit of advice for the nation's football widows:

"Get in there and join your husband; that's what I do." Mrs. Nixon took part in the Tournament of Roses parade here Monday before attending the Rose Bowl game in which the University of Southern California beat Ohio State University 42-17.

She told newsmen that, when the President, who is an avid football fan, is prevented by his busy schedule from seeing a game, "I make it a practice to try to keep up with what is happening so I may fill him in."

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Imogene Coca has undergone surgery for partial face reconstruction and an injured right eye following a Florida auto accident.

Miss Coca, onetime television comedy partner of Sid Caesar, was flown here from Florida for the operation at the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital.

Doctors termed the operation Monday a "success." They said "results were excellent and the prognosis is good."

Pilot's eyesight had deteriorated, flight surgeon acknowledged

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A federal flight surgeon says the eyesight of the pilot of an Eastern Air Lines jet that crashed into the Everglades last Saturday had deteriorated from 20-40 to 20-100 in a six-month period, the St. Petersburg Times reports.

A Federal Aviation Administration surgeon said a tumor found in Capt. Robert A. Loft's brain by a medical examiner could have been pressing against his eye nerves enough to affect his vision, the newspaper reported Monday. But the surgeon, who was unnamed, agreed witnesses could not recall Loft showing any signs of the growth in his brain.

The bell-shaped tumor was found in an autopsy conducted during the weekend in Miami, the paper said.

Eastern requires its pilots be given a physical examination every six months, the Times reported.

The Times said in today's editions that an Eastern technical specialist, Angelo J. Donadeo, was in the belly of the Lockheed 1011 with second officer Donald Repo when the plane crashed.

Donadeo, interviewed in a hospital in Hialeah, said he was riding in the jump seat in the back of the cockpit when the captain noticed that his flight panel indicated there was a problem with the nose gear light.

Donadeo said that, as the plane circled away from its scheduled landing, he and Repo slid into a small compartment under the cockpit to check the landing gear, the Times reported.

On the TriStar, there is a small window in the belly of the plane that would allow the two to see whether the landing gear and its lights were operating, the newspaper said.

Donadeo said, "I didn't quite get to the window" before the plane crashed, "and that's the last thing I remember."

Repo, the flight engineer, died Sunday from injuries suffered in the crash.

Relative questions sister's child-rearing

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-M. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am concerned about the relationship between my sister and her 8-year-old son. To be frank, I wonder if it could cause homosexual tendencies in the boy.

Altho she dresses him in male clothing, she selects such babyish styles—minus zippers. His favorite pastime is "playing house." And he doesn't appear to be at ease with boys.

There seems to be an unusual physical attraction between the mother and son. He is not allowed to use the men's restrooms. She always takes him into the ladies' restrooms. He doesn't seem to be embarrassed by it either.

My sister is an intelligent, educated person. And her husband is no dummy. I cannot understand why he doesn't put his foot down.

Is it normal for the boy to accept his mother's way of training him without protesting?

We don't feel that we can discuss this with her, but she is an avid reader of your column, so perhaps she will see this and recognize herself, and do something about a potential problem.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Your sister's behavior toward her son is not normal, but his responses are indeed what one could expect. Yes, she could be sowing the seeds of homosexuality. Don't wait for her to "recognize" herself. TELL her what is obvious to you and others.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that when people are trying to watch their calories, their friends say: "Oh, come on... have a piece of candy, or another helping. It can't hurt you."

I always end up eating it just to shut them up or to get on with the bridge game or what ever the case may be.

When I quit smoking, I didn't have people telling me that one cigarette wouldn't hurt me. And if a person has joined A. A., nobody would tell him that one little drink wouldn't hurt him.

People who are dieting should be given the same help as those who have given up smoking or alcohol. After all, a weight problem is harmful to one's health, too. ON A DIET

DEAR ON: I agree. Dieters need all the help they can get, but don't blame those who tempt you if you can't resist temptation.

DEAR ABBY: We are having trouble with some friends we have known a long time.

As our invited guests they feel free to change the dates of their visits with no regard to our planning.

They have even failed to tell us they were not coming until the day they were expected. The last time they did this we had borrowed beds and bought food for their weekend visit. We had also invited others in for a party.

There never seems to be a reason, such as an emergency that keeps them from following thru on a planned trip. They just call at the last minute and cancel.

How would you handle friends like these?

PITTSBURGERS

DEAR PITTSBURGERS: If you invite these "friends" to be your guests again, you deserve what you get.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "NO LEFTOVERS": Why didn't you come right out and ask for some of the leftover turkey? Since you brought the bird to the family dinner you were entitled to take some of the leftovers home with you. You need more "backbone" and less "wishbone!"

Watch for tent coats this spring. American and European designers are showing many of same.

Some fashion observers are using the word "grace" to describe spring looks being served up by American designers. The clothes are the ultimate in romantic and feminine looks.

Pins are back to being worn all over the place. On the shoulder, peeping beneath a lapel, gleaming on a pocket, teamed with a rope necklace. They add the touch of individuality.

Miss Vinson becomes bride of Mr. Short

Miss Sarah Margaret Vinson and Russell Ellsworth Short were married Dec. 29 in St. Paul United Methodist Church at Little Rock. The bride is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Everett M. Vinson of Monticello. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt L. Short of Little Rock.

The Reverend Vinson, father of the bride, performed the ceremony. Mrs. James Suitt, organist, and Miss Mary Lou Fulmer, soloist, provided music. Jimmy Vinson and Scott Goodrich lit the candles.

The bride's brother, James P. Vinson of Little Rock, gave her in marriage. She wore a formal candlelight satin gown with high neckline and bishop sleeves. Chantilly lace detailed the neckline, sleeves, and ruffled train. Her chapel length mantilla veil was of silk organza and trimmed in chantilly lace. She carried a nosegay of red sweetheart roses and baby's breath intertwined with net.

Mrs. James Dunn was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Kathy Short, sister of the groom; Mrs. Don Kneipp of Baton Rouge, La.; and Mrs. Mike Tolleson of Hope.

The groom's father served as best man. Groomsman were DeWitt Short, Jr. and David Short, both brothers of the groom; and Mike Alexander. Seating the guests were David Fagan, Charles Carroll, and Vic Wright. All are of Little Rock.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. After a trip to St. Louis, the couple will be at home in Little Rock.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB More than one 'Arthritis'

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I read your column daily and thoroughly enjoy it. Many times it has included things I like to know. I must have missed somewhere though, because I would like to know about arthritis. I have just become a victim of this and it's miserable. I have it in my neck, down to the middle of my spine, across my shoulders, and one finger. I am also on sugar pills. Do you have a booklet on arthritis? I've heard that it was caused from our lacking something. Could you inform me?

Dear Reader—There are many types of arthritis, and I am not sure from your letter what type you may have. Osteoarthritis, sometimes called degenerative arthritis, is the type more commonly noted in later years, literally associated with wearing away of the joints with loss of bony tissue and reformation of bony tissue into spurs and lipping of joint spaces in the hands, limbs, and spine. The weight-bearing joints are most often affected, which includes the spine.

Rheumatoid arthritis is an inflammatory process, more frequent in young women but also noted in men and some older people. Gout can cause arthritis. The degeneration of the bone, really called osteoporosis, common in middle-aged women is often included in the group of disorders known as arthritis although really it isn't an arthritic disease. The topic is more complicated than I can cover in a column, although I have discussed it in the past in a series of columns. I did collaborate with Mrs. Lallie Stone on the story of her fight with rheumatoid arthritis, and in the course of the discussion have included information on the other common forms of arthritis.

This book, "There's Help for Arthritis," is written for people like yourself who have arthritis problems and want a common sense, plain language discussion of the problem. I am sure you would enjoy LaRue's story, and hopefully the medical comments will answer many of your questions about arthritis.

In case you like to worry, here's another item you can add to your list. If you eat hot dogs, bologna, cured ham, bacon or other cured meats, you may be ingesting a chemical which is known to cause cancer. Note I said may be, because this is one of the hottest controversies going in the food industry. The whole argument's about the use of nitrates in processing cured meats. The nitrates prevent the growth of the botulinum organism that causes botulism. This organism grows in areas where there is very little oxygen. That's why it grows in canned foods if the live organism is still present when the food is canned. It's possible for such organisms to grow also within the depths of cured meat. To prevent this possibility the meat is treated with nitrates.

These, combined with other chemicals, and of course the abundant nitrite sources that occur from the environment anyway, produce chemical compounds containing nitrogen that can stimulate cancer. It is thought that small amounts of these chemicals won't cause cancer. But the question is, how much is small enough? If you don't use nitrates there is the question of botulism, and if you use it there's the question of cancer. The Food and Drug Administration and the Health, Education and Welfare Department are heavily involved in the problem as well as the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Lowry leads Longhorns in Cotton Bowl victory

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Texas Coach Darrell Royal may know everything there is to know about the Wishbone offense, but he's not too proud to take a tip from his quarterback, even if the lad is a converted defensive back.

Longhorn quarterback Alan Lowry noticed in the fourth quarter of New Year Day's Cotton Bowl Classic with Alabama that the Crimson Tide cornerback was coming hard on Texas' inside plays.

Fighting tonsillitis, 100-degree fever and chills, Lowry trotted to the Texas sidelines with the Longhorns trailing 13-10 to suggest a play the Longhorns had only used twice all season.

Lowry wanted the bootleg in which he fakes to a back going one way and takes off in the other direction with only one blocker.

The ruse caught Alabama napping and Lowry scotted down the sidelines, narrowly missing the out-of-bounds line, to score from 34 yards out for the winning touchdown.

Royal said, "The winning play was Lowry's idea. He had told the coaches that it would work."

Lowry said, "We had been running the inside well and we caught the cornerback coming in, we've only run the play twice this year and the other time was against Utah State when it went for 40 yards. I noticed the cornerback shooting in and I told the coach about it. I was worried about trying to stay in bounds."

Lowry, who also scored on a three-yard run and gained 117 yards in 16 carries, was voted the most valuable offensive player.

Superb Longhorn linebacker Randy Braband, voted the game's most valuable defensive player, made a crucial fourth and one stop on Alabama's Wilbur Jackson at the Texas 43 to stop a final Alabama drive in the closing minutes.

For the seventh-ranked Longhorns, it kept Royal string intact of never having lost to a Paul Bryant-coached team. The Crimson Tide was rated fourth going into the game.

The victory broke a two-game losing drought in the Cotton Bowl for Texas and kept alive a string of not having lost to Alabama in seven games.

All-American offensive tackle Jerry Sisemore of Texas said "We've blown the last two Cotton Bowls (to Notre Dame and Penn State) and we wanted to make up for those last two."

Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant was quick to praise the Longhorns.

"Texas deserved to win the game...and of course, I did my usual lousy job," Bryant said.

On the fourth down play in which Jackson was stopped, Bryant said "I don't think Jackson had a chance. It was just another lousy call on my part. We should have gone straight at them and instead we went behind a split end who had been playing tight end and who isn't used to that type of blocking."

Jackson scored on a 31-yard run and Greg Gantt kicked a Cotton Bowl record 50-yard field goal to give 'Bama a 10-0 first quarter lead.

Lowry rallied the 'Horns from a 13-3 halftime deficit on his 3-yard scoring run and his tight-rope job down the sidelines.

Royal said of Lowry's suggestion: "I called it but it was his idea. We like to have his thinking as well as that of the coaches."

Cotton Bowl: A case of emotion

By MIKE COCHRAN

Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) — It was half-time at the Cotton Bowl, Alabama led Texas 13-3 and Longhorn Coach Darrell Royal was distressed. Not so much at the score, but with his players.

Some had called it the "Chicken Bowl," suggesting Alabama "copped out" in its bid for a national title by opposing a "pushover."

"When we came in at the half I could look in their eyes and see they were down ... dejected ... like we were defeated," Royal said.

"I didn't know what I was going to do about it."

Then something changed. And Royal couldn't explain it.

"I was surprised at the sudden show of emotion," he recalled afterward. "It came just before they went out on the field to start the second half."

"It was something this team never had shown before ... Emotion is something you can't invent. Apparently it was deep within them."

And it exploded in the final 30 minutes as quarterback Alan Lowry guided the seventh-ranked Longhorns to a 17-13 verdict before a chilly Cotton Bowl crowd of 72,000 and a national television audience.

Lowry's three-yard touchdown run closed the gap and then the fleet senior, fighting a fever, chills a touch of tonsillitis and the clock, raced 34 yards for the winning score.

The clincher came with just 4:22 left as Lowry faked to full-back Roosevelt Leaks and took off on a blind bootleg romp down the sideline—some said he stepped out of bounds—to the Alabama goal.

A block by Rick Davis at about the 20 eliminated the last obstacle and the Longhorns went on to defy the oddsmakers who predicted the fourth-ranked Crimson Tide would win it by a touchdown.

"It's about time we won one of them," said Lowry, alluding to the fact that Texas had dropped back-to-back Cotton Bowl decisions to Notre Dame and Penn State.

The triumph was the 10th by Texas against one loss and kept unsullied Royal's record against Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant and the Longhorns' record against the Crimson Tide.

Bryant has never beaten Royal in four meetings and Alabama is winless in seven bouts with the Longhorns.

The celebrated 'Bama coach was quick to credit the victory to the coaching wizardry of Royal and his lieutenants.

"Well, first of all, I think that Texas deserved to win the football game," Bryant said. "I think really and truly that the game was won on their sidelines or in their press box booth."

"They did a terrific job of running the game, going against our weaknesses. And, of course, I did my usual lousy job."

Bryant took personal responsibility for a fourth down decision that backfired when Texas' Randy Braband stopped Wilbur Jackson inches away from a first down, ending the Tide's final scoring threat at the Texas 43.

As Texas took over and ran on the clock, Longhorn defensive back Terry Melancon, who stole two Alabama passes, glanced at the scoreboard and said to no one in particular:

"Oh, that looks beautiful—17 to 13."

Bowl games roundup

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Southern California's top-ranked Trojans, unleashing a seemingly unstoppable attack, and Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers of Nebraska, displaying the superb form that garnered him the honor emblematic of the nation's finest college player, have left no doubt they deserve their honors.

The Trojans, bolstered by Sam Cunningham's four touchdowns, forged a 42-17 Rose Bowl victory over Ohio State Monday and clinched the national college football championship.

Rodgers, although weakened by the flu, bolted for four touchdowns and passed for another as the Cornhuskers crushed Notre Dame 40-6 in the Orange Bowl. Texas upset Alabama 17-13 in the Cotton Bowl, rounding out New Year's Days' slate of bowl games.

"I tried hard tonight to prove I deserved it," Rodgers said of his Heisman selection. I think that's the longest game of my life. I've had the flu all week. I was really fatigued."

Rodgers, the 5-foot-9 speedster, scored on runs of eight, four and five yards, scored on a 50-yard pass play and rifled a 52-yard TD bomb to Frosty Anderson.

In the Sugar Bowl Sunday, Oklahoma blanked Penn State 14-0. In bowl games Saturday, Auburn bombed Colorado 24-3 in the Gator Bowl, North Carolina beat Texas Tech 32-28 in the Sun Bowl, the East defeated the West 9-3 in the Shrine game and Tennessee beat Louisiana State 24-18 in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

Texas quarterback Alan Lowry scampered 34 yards for a touchdown on a bootleg play as the Longhorns upset Alabama and maintained Coach Darrell Royal's record of never having lost to a Bear Bryant-coached team.

Tinker Owens, a 17-year-old freshman, caught five passes for 132 yards and one touchdown as Oklahoma downed Penn State.

"I didn't think I'd be playing varsity ball this year," said Owens, brother of Oklahoma's Heisman Trophy winner Steve Owens. "I really can't believe it."

Rodgers dazzles the Irish in Orange Bowl

By JOHN R. SKINNER

Associated Press Sports Writer
MIAMI (AP) — Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian wasn't quite sure what happened to his football team when it got slaughtered 40-6 by Nebraska Monday night in the Orange Bowl.

He should talk to Johnny Rodgers, the Heisman Trophy winner who dazzled the Irish with touchdown runs of eight, four and five yards, caught a pass for a 50-yard touchdown and threw a 52-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Frosty Anderson.

"The defensive line was slow," said Rodgers of the Irish. "Where they were slow, they were big and strong. We couldn't run through them so we followed our blockers."

Rodgers and the other Cornhusker backs consistently ran through gaping holes provided by the front line to hand Parseghian the worst defeat in his nine years at Notre Dame.

While Parseghian praised Nebraska's team for superior execution on offense and Rodgers' for his versatility, he apparently wasn't convinced his team was that much worse than the Cornhuskers.

"Maybe our preparation was not as good as it could have been," said Parseghian, who saw his season won-loss record fall to 8-3, worst in his tenure with the Irish. "I will have to go back and study the films and reassess the preparation."

"When I see the films I will be able to evaluate the kind of game we played," he said.

The one thing that Parseghian was sure of was Rodgers.

Tourney finals set tomorrow

The finals in the 2nd Annual Hempstead County Men's Invitational Basketball Tournament will be held at the Guernsey Gym at 7 p.m. tomorrow (Wednesday).

Undeclared Perry's Truck Stop will take on Anderson-Frazier in the championship game. If Anderson-Frazier downs Perry's in the first match, the teams will play a second game, beginning at 8:30. Anderson-Frazier was upset in first round play in the double-elimination tourney, and fought their way through three games to reach the finals.

In action Friday, Anderson-Frazier downed Central College of Texarkana in an overtime game, and Perry's annihilated first-round winner Zeco.

Saturday afternoon, Butane Gas and Zeco vied for third place in the tourney with Butane taking the title 92-80. Later in the afternoon, Anderson-Frazier slipped by Butane 90-85.

By GARY MIHOCS
Associated Press sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Those who were close to Roberto Clemente say it was almost as tough to know him as it was to strike him out.

His untimely death not only cut short one of the greatest careers in baseball history, but the life of a complex man whose personality was misunderstood by some, oversimplified by others.

He had a public image as baseball's leading hypochondriac, yet he ran out every infield grounder of his career as if the World Series were at stake.

He was proud of his skills and often berated reporters for what he believed was unfair press treatment of Latinos. Yet he never forgot his teammates, the fans or the little people.

He was a staunch believer in the Players' Association, and also gave freely of his time and money to charity work that often went unnoticed, just like he wanted it.

When he was killed Sunday night in a plane crash off the coast of his native Puerto Rico, he was on a mission of mercy to deliver supplies to survivors of the Nicaraguan earthquake.

He had been working 14 hours a day since Christmas in heading the Puerto Rican relief effort, and he rarely ate while consuming his passion to help others.

Roberto Clemente the baseball player was a perfectly constructed 185-pounder, who did so many things so well in his 18-year career that he is assured a niche in the baseball Hall of Fame.

The record books show that Clemente recorded his 3,000th hit on Sept. 30 of last season against the Mets. That was something only 10 other players had ever done.

He also had more hits and more runs batted in while wearing a Pirate uniform than any other player, and he won four National League batting titles in compiling a .318 lifetime average.

Yet the record books cannot mirror the real Roberto Clemente, the man in uniform No. 21, whose wizardry in right field, at the plate and on the basepaths made him Mr. Pirate.

His style was unorthodox and a Little League manager might have benched him for it, yet any pitcher he could reach could be a line single or a towering homerun.

He had speed on the basepaths, and he could run down seemingly unreachable shots in the rightfield gap. His basket catches made routine plays look hard, and his great catches made hard plays look easy.

Despite his unmistakable skills, Clemente always believed that baseball writers never fully recognized his ability.

In 1960, for example, the Pirates won the World Series, but Dick Groat was the National League MVP, not Clemente.

He was hurt deeply by the choice and would not wear his World Series ring. Instead, he wore his All-Star ring, which he believed was the true measure of his skills.

Perhaps his greatest individual recognition came in 1971 when he led Pittsburgh to victory over Baltimore in the World Series.

Last season, a bout with the virus and sore ankle tendons left him sub-par physically, but he still hit .312 in 102 games and helped Pittsburgh to the National League East Title.

He was selected to 12 All-Star games after coming to Pittsburgh in 1954 from the Los Angeles Dodgers organization for the bargain draft price of $4,000.

Many baseball observers link the coup in acquiring Clemente to the quota system which once restricted entry of blacks into the big leagues.

The 38-year-old son of a sugar cane plantation foreman was signed by the Dodgers seven years after Jackie Robinson broke baseball's color barrier.

There were five black players on the Dodgers' parent club that year, and Clemente was signed to a minor league contract even though it meant the risk of losing him in the draft.

Pittsburgh finished last that season and promptly drafted the man who would become the greatest player in the club's history.

Clemente's private life centered around his humanitarian work and his wife, Vera, and three young sons. He reportedly was paid about $150,000 per year and expected to play another four or five years.

Lobos join blue ribbon gang

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer
Virtually unnoticed, the New Mexico Lobos have come to the fore in college basketball.

The Lobos, not mentioned in The Associated Press pre-season poll or in any of the weekly Top Twenty in the 1972 segment, finally joined the blue ribbon group in 1973.

Under new coach Norm Ellenberger, the Lobos scored their ninth victory in a row Saturday night, beating Seattle 70-54 for the championship of the Lobo Classic tourney at Albuquerque, N.M., and moved in as No. 16 in the polls.

Now the Lobos are pointing for the championship in the Western Athletic Conference, in which Brigham Young is favored. The Lobos' first WAC games are Friday against Arizona State and Saturday against Arizona.

Asked if his team is ready for conference action, Ellenberger replied: "If we're not, we better quit."

At any rate, the Lobos start the new year in the select company of such other unbeaten teams as national champion UCLA, Maryland, Marquette, North Carolina State, Minnesota, Long Beach State, Missouri and Southwestern Louisiana, all ranked in the AP Top Ten.

UCLA continued to hold forth as the country's No. 1 team, capturing all 26 first place ballots from the nation's sports writers and broadcasters for a total of 520 points.

Maryland remained No. 2 with 444 points while Marquette held on to No. 3 with 371.

The remainder of the select group included No. 4 North Carolina State with 355; No. 5 Long Beach State, 342; No. 6 Minnesota, 311; No. 7 Missouri, 283; No. 8 Southwestern Louisiana, 216; No. 9 North Carolina, 128, and No. 10 Houston, 127.

Penn and Vanderbilt were among the unbeaten until last week.

Clemente's life ends on mission of mercy

By GARY MIHOCS
Associated Press sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Those who were close to Roberto Clemente say it was almost as tough to know him as it was to strike him out.

His untimely death not only cut short one of the greatest careers in baseball history, but the life of a complex man whose personality was misunderstood by some, oversimplified by others.

He had a public image as baseball's leading hypochondriac, yet he ran out every infield grounder of his career as if the World Series were at stake.

He was proud of his skills and often berated reporters for what he believed was unfair press treatment of Latinos. Yet he never forgot his teammates, the fans or the little people.

He was a staunch believer in the Players' Association, and also gave freely of his time and money to charity work that often went unnoticed, just like he wanted it.

When he was killed Sunday night in a plane crash off the coast of his native Puerto Rico, he was on a mission of mercy to deliver supplies to survivors of the Nicaraguan earthquake.

He had been working 14 hours a day since Christmas in heading the Puerto Rican relief effort, and he rarely ate while consuming his passion to help others.

Roberto Clemente the baseball player was a perfectly constructed 185-pounder, who did so many things so well in his 18-year career that he is assured a niche in the baseball Hall of Fame.

The record books show that Clemente recorded his 3,000th hit on Sept. 30 of last season against the Mets. That was something only 10 other players had ever done.

He also had more hits and more runs batted in while wearing a Pirate uniform than any other player, and he won four National League batting titles in compiling a .318 lifetime average.

Yet the record books cannot mirror the real Roberto Clemente, the man in uniform No. 21, whose wizardry in right field, at the plate and on the basepaths made him Mr. Pirate.

His style was unorthodox and a Little League manager might have benched him for it, yet any pitcher he could reach could be a line single or a towering homerun.

He had speed on the basepaths, and he could run down seemingly unreachable shots in the rightfield gap. His basket catches made routine plays look hard, and his great catches made hard plays look easy.

Despite his unmistakable skills, Clemente always believed that baseball writers never fully recognized his ability.

In 1960, for example, the Pirates won the World Series, but Dick Groat was the National League MVP, not Clemente.

He was hurt deeply by the choice and would not wear his World Series ring. Instead, he wore his All-Star ring, which he believed was the true measure of his skills.

Perhaps his greatest individual recognition came in 1971 when he led Pittsburgh to victory over Baltimore in the World Series.

Last season, a bout with the virus and sore ankle tendons left him sub-par physically, but he still hit .312 in 102 games and helped Pittsburgh to the National League East Title.

He was selected to 12 All-Star games after coming to Pittsburgh in 1954 from the Los Angeles Dodgers organization for the bargain draft price of $4,000.

Many baseball observers link the coup in acquiring Clemente to the quota system which once restricted entry of blacks into the big leagues.

The 38-year-old son of a sugar cane plantation foreman was signed by the Dodgers seven years after Jackie Robinson broke baseball's color barrier.

There were five black players on the Dodgers' parent club that year, and Clemente was signed to a minor league contract even though it meant the risk of losing him in the draft.

Pittsburgh finished last that season and promptly drafted the man who would become the greatest player in the club's history.

Clemente's private life centered around his humanitarian work and his wife, Vera, and three young sons. He reportedly was paid about $150,000 per year and expected to play another four or five years.

Controversy grows over 'bad call'

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — The Sun Bowl official whose personal foul call cost Texas Tech an apparent touchdown says, "You either have a call to make or you haven't," and maintains that he did the right thing.

J. William "Bill" Davis called a 15-yard infraction on Tech for having a coach on the field in Saturday's game. The penalty nullified a touchdown scored by Tech after blocking a punt. North Carolina went on to win the game 32-28.

Adding to the controversy was the fact that Davis is an Atlantic Coast Conference official and lives about 70 miles from the UNC Chapel Hill campus.

Davis, in a telephone interview with the Raleigh News and Observer, said he was following the play when an unidentified man in red—Texas Tech's colors—stepped from the Tech bench area onto the field and into Davis' way.

Bucks lose to Bullets

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

What's faster than a speeding Bullet?

The Milwaukee Bucks didn't have the answer Monday night and as a result, lost an 88-87 National Basketball Association decision to the Baltimore Bullets.

Mike Riordan sped through the Milwaukee defense and delivered a jump shot with 57 seconds left to provide the Bullets with their triumph.

Riordan scored 23 points overall as the Bullets beat the Bucks for the first time in 14 games. Milwaukee had taken Baltimore 13 straight times since Dec. 14, 1970.

The defeat, Milwaukee's second straight, cut the Bucks' lead in the Midwest Division to 2½ games over idle Chicago. The Bullets took a half-game advantage over Atlanta in the Central Division.

In the night's only other NBA game, the Los Angeles Lakers stopped the Seattle SuperSonics 108-103. No games were played in the American Basketball Association Monday and neither league had any scheduled Sunday.

On Saturday in the NBA, it was New York 100, Baltimore 98; Atlanta 120, Buffalo 110; Chicago 99, Milwaukee 92; Phoenix 107, Portland 104; Golden State 113, Kansas City-Omaha 107 and Boston 117, Philadelphia 107.

Saturday's ABA results: Denver 136, New York 98; Virginia 120, Memphis 104; Carolina 104, Kentucky 91; Indiana 109, Dallas 101 and Utah 111, San Diego 89.

Dolphins taking high road to Super Bowl

PITTSBURGH (AP) — After a stopover in Pittsburgh, the Miami Dolphins are taking the high road to the Super Bowl. It's Los Angeles or bust.

"We've been to the Super Bowl already but we want to get there and win for a change," says Miami Coach Don Shula.

The Dolphins, who lost last year's National Football League championship game to the Dallas Cowboys, earned a return trip this year by beating the Pittsburgh Steelers 21-17 Sunday for the American Conference title.

The Dolphins will play the Washington Redskins Jan. 14 for the world title. The Redskins walloped the Cowboys Sunday for the National Conference championship.

"The Steelers are a young team and a tough team and you'll hear a lot from them in the next few years," said Shula.

Miami's heroics were provided by punter Larry Seiple, who ran a fake punt 37 yards to set up the tying score in the second quarter, and quarterback Bob Griese, who led the Dolphins to a pair of second-half TDs after taking over for starter Earl Morrall.

"It has to be the most exciting thing in my career," said Seiple, a former running back in college. "I knew by the films that the Steelers run two guys from the outside and leave the middle open. Most of the time, their guys have their backs to the ball."

Seiple, therefore, took advantage of the Steelers' inattention and ran off the key play.

"It was a very alert play," said Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

There is nothing sensational about today's hand, but it does show some quiet but elegant dummy play.

South starts with eight top tricks and can produce the ninth by a successful finesse in a red suit. You will note that both finesses are off but this didn't really bother South.

He won the second spade and cashed three club tricks while making sure to leave dummy with the high club.

Then he threw West in with a spade and let West cash the rest of his spades. South discarded a heart and diamond from his own hand and two hearts from dummy.

West had to lead a red card and it didn't matter which one. The endplay gave South his ninth trick.

What was elegant about the play? It was that South did not cash the last club.

If he had, West would probably unguard the queen of diamonds but South would not know this and if South then threw West in, the last spade lead would leave South with just four cards. That would not be enough for the end-play, since South would only be able to hold two diamonds.

Boyleing it down

NEW YORK (AP) — Nothing will seem free in 1973.

But there is no reason for mankind to give up hope, according to our annual Fuzzy Forecast of the year ahead. A glance at the old crystal ball reveals both good news and bad news.

The good news is that jobs will become more plentiful. The bad news is that prices will go on rising, and more and more people will accept the viewpoint that inflation has become a permanent way of life in the United States.

A move will develop to abolish penny coins on the grounds that they clutter up the pockets, slow cash transactions and are no longer worth counting. Twenty years from now an attempt will be made to drop the nickel for the same reasons.

A medical quack will announce that he has solved the problem of cancer and that it is on the edge of extinction. He will die of the disease himself later in the year.

Congress will ban cigarette-smoking during meetings in both the House and Senate chambers. The telling of lewd stories in the cloakrooms will also be prohibited. Snuff and chewing tobacco will continue to be allowed. A move to raise congressional salaries and pensions will be abandoned after voters stage a national chain letter protest.

Developments on the international front:

London will offer to set Wales and Scotland free if the struggling Irish will just settle down and behave themselves like the decent Englishmen they aren't.

In Paris, the French Academy will unanimously turn down a proposal that Americanese be taught as a second language in France.

A half-dozen mass riots and small wars will break out in Africa. They will die down soon, however, when the rest of a war-weary world refuses to pay any attention to them.

The loudest political laugh of the year will take place when Henry Kissinger opens a Christmas present from a well-wisher — and it turns out to be a brand new megaphone.

On the sports front: Moscow will announce that the Russians defeated Red China's ping pong team in a secret match. Peking will deny the report for three straight days, and on the fourth day Chairman Mao will volunteer to play the whole Russian team single-handed himself — if he can keep score.

Other developments: Two long-haired teen-age freaks in San Francisco will go through a traditional wedding, but only after the minister agrees to read the marriage vows backward.

In summary, 1973 promises to be just another of those years that will be more fun to look back on later than to go through now.

Helen help us!

by Helen Bottel

move? —RUNNING OUT OF TEARS BY THE TELEPHONE DEAR RUNNING:

Yes! Away from the telephone and toward other interests, such as a new man in your life. I'd guess your dream of marriage is Barney's nightmare. So wake up and face facts: "After all we've been through together" is not a valid reason for continuing a love affair you've probably outgrown. —HELEN R.O.O.T.B.T.:

But first, get on the horn and settle this affair once and for all. When you hear—from Barney—that he isn't coming back, well, it will hurt, but it's better than wondering.

Waiting by the phone for a guy who can't say "I'm sorry," who runs out on you when you need him, and breaks his promises, then blames you for nagging—is a big waste of time and tears. —SUE DEAR RAP:

My problem is that I love to argue, at least that's what I'm little more than great ambition and ego.

Brokers must at a minimum pass examinations administered by either the National Association of Securities Dealers or the SEC. But those who peddle advice only — who do not also sell stock — need not prove their competence.

The chief requirements for being an adviser are to register with the SEC, pay the fees and keep proper records. There are no exams that must be passed or educational standards that must be met.

The SEC now has a committee charged with advising it on a program to better implement present legislation or perhaps enlarge its controls over such advisers, some of which misleadingly but accurately advertise: "Registered with SEC."

A greater number of people also are aware of the limitations of mutual funds managers, whose primary qualifications for beginning a fund are that they be able to pay the registration and legal fees and be free of criminal taint.

The SEC exercises no control over the quality of funds. It does not set down minimum standards of experience and education. As SEC Chairman William Casey put it: "It is not in our tradition to give examinations for private endeavors."

It is awareness of the limitations of regulation from Washington and self-regulation within the industry that has helped make small investors wiser, more able to handle their own affairs, more realistic about their goals.

"DICKENSIAN CONDITIONS" are what these militants are militating about in London as they seek to confront Mrs. Margaret Thatcher, Britain's education minister. In this case, Dickensian conditions mean a partially roofed school with outside toilets which frequently freeze up in winter—one of the seats of trouble.

told. I try to stop myself and I'm sorry afterwards. Otherwise I'm a quiet person but I just have to see the other side and say it. —TOO OPINIONATED? DEAR T.O.:

You're probably an interesting person BECAUSE you argue, or maybe a better word is "debate." Just call yourself the Devil's Advocate and stop before anyone loses his temper (including you). —SUE DEAR TOO:

The tricks to good, lively argument are: play it cool and don't get personal.

And if the argument is with your parents, call it "discussion" instead. —HELEN
